

Jackie Chan

August 2011

Dear Mr. Chan

We are writing on behalf of the Asia for Animals 2011 organising committee members, representing international organisations with extensive knowledge of animal welfare issues. We express our deep concern with regards your support for rodeo events due to take place at Beijing's Olympic stadium during the Chinese national day holidays in October.

Rodeo is an inherently cruel form of entertainment, disrespectful to the welfare of animals and contributing to the desensitisation of viewers to animal cruelty. Acts of such cruelty condition children to regard animals simply as objects to be used and abused for entertainment even though science has proven horses, cows, and other animals - are sentient animals with the ability to develop complex thoughts, social skills, and the ability to feel pain and to suffer.

The common use of electric prods and bucking straps to artificially induce 'wild' frenzied behaviour has the potential to cause severe pain and suffering. The roping of calves moving at speeds of up to 35 km per hour can lead to severe neck and back injuries, broken bones, internal haemorrhages and possible death.

The rodeo industry lacks comprehensive regulations to eliminate practices that cause injury, suffering, distress and death. The lack of animal protection legislation in China means animals will be injured and killed during these events in the name of entertainment.

Rodeos have no place in modern society. On behalf of our members globally, we appeal to you to disassociate yourself from the rodeo events in Beijing. As the most renowned Chinese celebrity on earth, an established movie star with hundreds of millions of fans around the world, and a spokesman for wildlife protection, your stand against animal cruelty in rodeos will show to the world and the US sponsors of the rodeo event in particular that the Chinese people do not and will never welcome programs or practices taking advantage of nonhuman individuals.

We urge you to stand with 70 mainland Chinese animal protection groups and the international NGOs co-signing this letter. Let's tell the US sponsors of the rodeo events that China is no dumping ground for cruelty and abuse.
